The title of the collection, "Heure Bleue," refers to the magical twilight hour when day transitions into night, embodying the liminal space between light and darkness. This concept permeates the poems, capturing the delicate balance between presence and absence, memory and forgetting. Gabbert masterfully weaves together personal experiences, historical events, and philosophical musings, creating a rich and multifaceted exploration of the human condition.

Through her poignant verses, she encourages us to embrace the impermanence of our existence and find meaning in the brief moments we have.

In the poem "Ars Poetica," she writes:

Gabbert's words resonate with a profound sense of introspection and vulnerability, reminding us of the importance of living life authentically, even in the face of mortality.

Lyrical Language and Evocative Imagery

One of the defining characteristics of Heure Bleue is Gabbert's exquisite use of language. Her poems are lyrical and evocative, employing sensory imagery and rich metaphors to create a vivid and immersive experience for the reader. In the poem "Afterimage," she writes:
