Newsworthy is built on the latest research on how students learn. The program provides students with a variety of opportunities to engage with texts, both fiction and nonfiction. Through these interactions, students learn to identify the main ideas of a text, analyze the author's purpose, and evaluate the evidence presented.

In addition to reading instruction, Newsworthy also provides students with extensive opportunities to write. Students write in a variety of genres, including essays, stories, poems, and plays. Through the writing process, students learn to organize their thoughts, develop their ideas, and express themselves clearly.

Newsworthy is more than just a textbook. It is a complete learning system that includes a variety of resources to support teachers and students.

1. The Newsworthy Teacher's Edition provides teachers with lesson plans, activities, and assessment tools.
2. The Newsworthy Student Workbook provides students with additional practice opportunities and reinforcement.
3. The Newsworthy Online Companion provides students with access to interactive activities, videos, and other resources.

Newsworthy is a proven effective program. Studies have shown that students who use Newsworthy make significant gains in their reading and writing skills.

If you are looking for a language arts program that will help your students develop the critical thinking skills they need to succeed in school and beyond, then Newsworthy is the perfect choice.
