One day, Hobs was waddling along the shore when he saw a bright light in the distance. He followed the light until he came to a cozy little house with a warm fire burning in the fireplace. Hobs peered through the window and saw a family gathered around the fire, laughing and talking. Hobs had never seen anything so beautiful, and he longed to be a part of it.

Every day, Hobs would sit outside the window and watch the family. He would watch the children play and the parents cuddle. He would listen to the laughter and the music. And he would dream of a life where he could be happy like them.

One day, Hobs was so lost in his daydream that he didn't notice the ice beneath him cracking. He fell into the icy water and was swept away by the current. Hobs thought he was going to die, but then he saw a familiar light in the distance. He swam towards the light and found himself back at the window of the cozy little house.

The family saw Hobs and rushed to help him. They pulled him out of the water and wrapped him in a warm blanket. Hobs was so grateful to be alive, and he knew that he had found his home.

Hobs lived with the family for many years, and he was always happy. He had found the love and happiness that he had always longed for, and he knew that he would never be lonely again.
