

The COVID Alphabet: Empowering Teachers to Navigate the Pandemic

The COVID-19 pandemic has had a profound impact on education around the world. Schools have been closed, students have been learning from home, and teachers have been forced to adapt to new ways of teaching. In the United States, the pandemic has exacerbated existing inequities in education, with students from low-income families and students of color being disproportionately affected.

In the face of these challenges, teachers need support. They need resources and strategies to help them teach effectively in the midst of a pandemic. They need to know how to create safe and supportive learning environments for their students. And they need to be able to address the social and emotional needs of their students, who are also struggling with the impact of the pandemic.

The COVID Alphabet is a comprehensive guide for teachers facing the challenges of teaching in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic. Written by experienced educators Kelly Cibrian and Kristin Souers, the book provides practical advice and strategies for every aspect of teaching during a pandemic, from creating safe and supportive learning environments to addressing the social and emotional needs of students.

The COVID Alphabet is divided into 26 chapters, each of which focuses on a different aspect of teaching during a pandemic. The chapters are organized alphabetically, from "A" for "Adapting to Change" to "Z" for "Zest for Teaching." Each chapter includes real-world examples, case studies, and reflective questions to help teachers apply the strategies to their own classrooms.

The COVID Alphabet is an essential resource for teachers facing the challenges of teaching in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic. The book provides practical advice and strategies for every aspect of teaching during a pandemic, from creating safe and supportive learning environments to addressing the social and emotional needs of students.
